What does it look like?

- The first issue : Self Portrait
- The latest issue : Water

All issues are hosted on the University of Edinburgh website. You can find the page easily by searching "Babble DELC creative"

- graphic design application : Canva
- host platform : ISSUU

How does it work?

The editing team : staff and students

the stages involved in the creation of an issue :

- choosing a main theme
- inviting the students to write texts and submit them with an illustration
- editing/proofreading
- creating the digital issue on Canva
- organising the launch of the new issue

Why do we love it?

Babble is a way to :

- foster a sense of community and inclusivity
- enjoy the language with newfound freedom and creativity
- develop new skills
- celebrate the many talents of our community of learners and teachers

What could a project involving creative writing look like in your school?

- Would something similar to Babble work?
- How would you adapt the format? What would it look like?
- Who could you work with on the project in your school or in the wider community?
