

Seachdain na Gàidhlig

World Gaelic Week

The second Seachdain na Gàidhlig (World Gaelic Week) was a huge success, with over 130 events taking place across Scotland (and some in other countries) at the end of February. This celebration of Gaelic language and culture saw a wide range of events including music, dance, poetry, sports and storytelling.

The week-long initiative, funded by Bòrd na Gàidhlig, took place from Monday 20th to Sunday 26th February and aimed to raise awareness / use of the Gaelic language to communities across the world. Events were organised by local individuals, groups and organisations and showcased the diversity and richness of the Gaelic language and culture, highlighting the importance of preserving this important part of Scotland's heritage.

The success of the second Seachdain na Gàidhlig highlights the growing interest in Gaelic language and culture in Scotland and beyond. The festival has become an important platform for celebrating and promoting Gaelic language and culture, and its success will no doubt inspire even more people to learn about and engage with this important part of Scotland's heritage. Dates for 2024 have been announced with the third Seachdain na Gàidhlig taking place from Monday 19th to Sunday 25th February 2024. How will you get involved?
