

Dear colleague,

We are delighted to let you know that the proposals form for this year's Scottish Association for Language Teaching conference is now open! We invite teachers and practitioners from all backgrounds to submit workshop proposals for the conference. This year's event will take place entirely in person at the University of Strathclyde in Glasgow. The event will last from 10am to approx. 1.30pm. This year's event will have a focus of the things we are all doing to put language back on the map in our settings. We would love to hear from anyone - primary, secondary or further/higher education - who is developing strategies to help languages thrive where they are. Workshops can last either 50 minutes or 25 minutes and can be as simple as sharing a few ideas with colleagues about what works for you.

Please submit your workshop proposal using the following link:

If you have any questions about the conference, or if you would like to know more about running a session before filling in the form, please get in touch with the SALT Chair, Andrew McCulloch, at andrewmccullochsalt@gmail.com.

We look forward to hearing from you and seeing you at the conference in November!

Best wishes
The SALT team
