

I'm completing my MSc at Queen Margaret University and as part of this, I'm doing a project on international education within Scotland's schools. This will result in a report on the perceived value, benefits, barriers and challenges to international education.

I hope to be able to share the findings with the wider community when its complete.

The survey only takes a few minutes to complete, and no experience of international activity is necessary. All responses are anonymous. An outline of the research project is provided within the survey intro.

I appreciate it is the end of term and realise everyone is very busy, but any shares and completions would be welcome and would really help my research.

Best wishes,
Liz Neil
